What We Do

Edvance Life Skills provides microlearning courses to help students navigate the complex transition years from high school to college to the workforce.

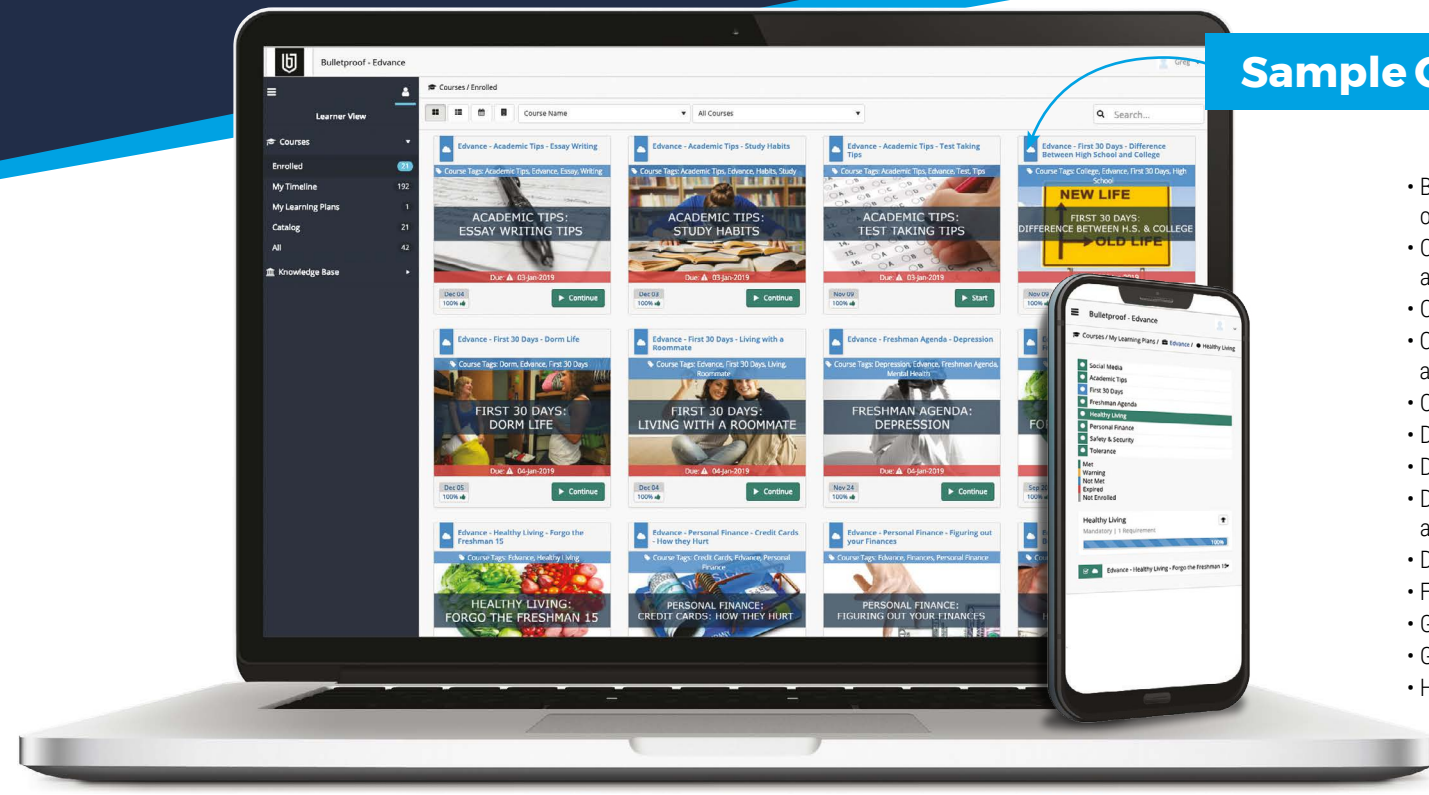

Working with students, parents, and Higher Ed administrators, we help spread awareness and helpful information to students in their new environment, as well as promote positive living solutions for students during this formative time in their life.

From the initial campus tour, through the application and admission process, to new student orientation and through their first year, college administrators and staff invest significant time and money in each student. Despite these efforts, only 70% of first year students return for their sophomore year*.

At Edvance Life Skills, we believe in taking a proactive approach to helping students return for their sophomore (and junior and senior) year and ultimately graduating with the academic, and life skills to enter the next phase of their life with a solid foundation.

Our microlearning courses are designed with the student in mind and offer a quick, yet thorough, approach to dealing with a specific circumstance a student may encounter in college life. Catching a small problem and offering a solution or resource before it snowballs into a major issue is our goal.
